SHAH ALAM

Malaysia's Garden City

A visit to Shah Alam is like a trip to a land of diversities. You will find most advanced facilities in modern architected buildings interlaced within carefully planned landscapes.

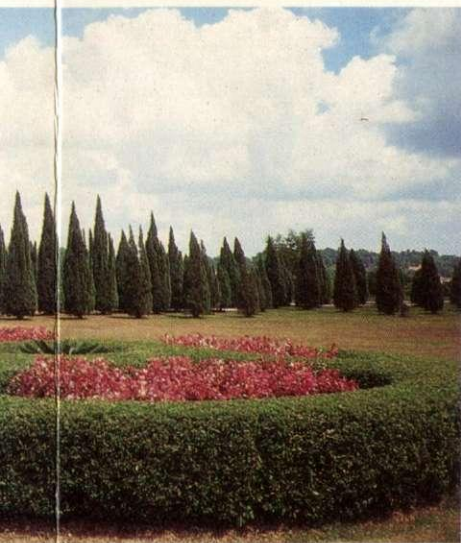

One such building is the Sultan Salahuddin Abdul Aziz Shah Building. Perched on the peak of a hill, this modern 27-storey State Secretariat Building houses the pulse of the administration of the state of Selangor Darul Ehsan.

For the more adventurous, Shah Alam's natural attributes are preserved at TAMAN PERTANIAN MALAYSIA, Malaysia's Agricultural Park. It is a retreat of lush jungle surrounding, home to a myriad of birds, insects and butterflies, kept largely in its natural state for the interest Another undisputed landmark in Shah Alam is the stately Sultan Salahuddin Abdul Aziz Shah Mosque. Reputed to be the largest in South East Asia, the moorish design of the mosque, looks outstanding in a setting of serene lakes and architected fauna.

Shah Alam offers a sample of its up-to-date technology in the form of it's Civic Centre which comprises a museum, Theatrette and Library.

of nature lovers. The pride of Shah Alam's landscaping effort is the Town Park where man-made lakes are created to form an idyllic picture of tranquility. You can soak in these sights walking through the pedestrian malls linking the various parts of the park.

*A*bout
25 years
ago, it was all just a dream. And now, the realization of
this dream mate-
rialises in the form of SHAH ALAM
- MALAYSIA'S
GARDEN CITY.

All these modern buildings are set in well-thought landscaping of natural greens and colourful flora.

Industrialisation and modern residential

projects however go hand in hand with the preservation of nature and maintenance of beautiful landscapes in Shah Alam.

The rapid development of this State
Capital of Selangor Darul Ehsan has seen the transition
of an abundant
tropical forest land
into a high-tech
industrialised
town and home to more than 100,000
people.
